WHEELING, MARCH 22, 1889.

The tender-hearted Governor of Delaware gives a respite of twenty-five years to a man condemned to be hanged to day. At the expiration of the years of grace the man is expected to call around and be hanged to him.

If President Harrison were a streak of greased lightning he couldn't move fast enough to please everybody. If he will do the best he can to put Mr. Cleveland's partisans on the retired list he will do all that can be expected of him.

Since District Attorney Watts told about the wicked Republicans desiring to get him out because he was going to convict such a batch of their friends, Mr. Watts has had time to reflect on the weakness of shouting too loud before you are out of the woods.

Mr. Justice Gray, of the Supreme Court of the United States, is sixty-one years of age, six feet four inches high and has a fortune. His bride-elect is Miss Eugenia, daughter of Mr. Justice Stanley Matthews, twenty-two years old and about a foot shorter than Justice Gray. In the rosy realm of love extremes meet and marry.

The Wheeling correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch informs that newspaper that the jury which acquitted Etzler and Hawkins was composed of nine Republicans and three Democrats. Precisely the contrary is true. The jury was composed of three Republicans and nine Democrats. The obvious intent of the correspondent was to create a false impression in the interest of the Democratic conspirators in West Virginia.

The Washington correspondents tell a story about Postmaster General Wamaker and Senator Plumb of Kansas. Wamaker could not see the matter of an appointment as Plumb did, and the Kansas man reminded the Postmaster General that he was not in Pennsylvania selling clothing. If this be true the correspondents have omitted the dramatic climax, for Wamaker certainly told Plumb to make instant use of the hole the carpenter left.

Too Late.
An exchange brings the information that "lately Mrs. Cleveland has abjured the bang, as well as the bustle, and brushes her hair straight up from her forehead."

If Mrs. Cleveland had only done this great and good thing while she was in the White House, how great the result might have been. Towards the end of her term Mrs. Cleveland did close up the largest bustle factory in New England, but her assault on the Shetland pony lung was reserved until she had gone into the seclusion of private life.

It is too late. The wife of an ex-President cannot set the fashions. For reform in this particular we must turn longingly to Mrs. Benjamin Harrison.

Special Compensation to Guardians of the Peace.
Two railway companies in New York offered $200 to a policeman of that city for valuable services rendered in connection with the late strikes on the city railway lines. The Police Commissioner declined to permit the policeman to accept the money, giving as their reason that the officer had simply performed his duty, for which the city paid him.

The county of Ohio offered a reward of $1,500 and the city of Wheeling $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Policeman Glenn. The Sheriff of Ohio county and the Chief of Police of Wheeling claimed a share of each reward. The county allowed it and the city is about to follow suit.

The New York policy is the better one. If public officers concerned with the preservation of the peace must be stimulated by special rewards to do their duty, they shall see to what extent the stimulating may not have to be carried?

Every Man's Fetish.

An interesting story is told of Stanley, an African chief and the chief's fetish. Stanley had important business with the dusky ruler and desired to do all he could to conciliate him. When they met the explorer noticed with what veneration the chief treated his fetish—a repulsive thing made of a monkey's skull and red clay trimmed with bells. In this was supposed to dwell the spirit of the chief's ancestors. Stanley made it a point of etiquette to pay as much attention to the fetish as the chief did, to the great delight of the African, who graciously did the thing Stanley asked of him.

How droll all this seems. No civilized man would think of setting up as the spirit of his ancestors the dried head of a monkey. Nevertheless every civilized man has a fetish, and if you will watch him closely you can find out what it is. With one it is family, just as with the African chief; with another his success in life, or his horses, or his dogs, or his personal appearance. Somewhere and in some form every man has his controlling weakness, and if you will search it out and bow down before it, the man will succumb to your worship of his fetish.

Startling News.

Somebody in Charleston is informing some of the newspapers of the discovery of a dark Republican plot. When the acting Governor calls a session of the Legislature to try the gubernatorial contest, the Republican members will not respond. Then they will be sent for and trouble will follow.

What would Republicans gain by this policy? There is, it is true, not one chance in a million of General Goff being declared Governor, for the Democrats have the same majority of one which has served them so well all through their defiant and unlawful course. But if there be no extra session of the Legislature Wilson will certainly set as Governor for two years.

It has been suggested that Wilson for two years would be better than Fleming, who was not elected, for four years. This is not the point. The issue is between Fleming and Goff, and no matter how the Democrats may determine that contest it is good policy to let them show their hands to the very last. There will be an extra session and the Republicans will be present.

A Specimen Ship.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune relates this story of a phase of life in Washington under President Cleveland:

One of the most humble aspirants for Government employment is an colored man who formerly worked in the office of the Supervising Inspector of Steamboats, James A. Dumont. The Supervising Inspector is a Republican, who was left undisturbed in his office by the Cleveland Administration, and who is likely to be retained by President Harrison. Meeting an old friend on the street the other day the colored man at once sought his influence in the matter of getting a new job.

"But I thought you were at work in Dumont's office?"

"So I was, boss, but Mr. Dumont he fired me."

"You are a Republican?"

"Yes, but after Mr. Cleveland came in Mr. Dumont says he wanted to serve those that served him, and so he fired me for offensive partisanship and put a Democrat in my place."

The story is worth telling because it is a specimen of a large class of cases. Republicans of the Dumont kind should be given an early opportunity to walk the plank.

AT TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

An Invention by Which Gas can be Furnished at This Price.

Chicago Tribune.

Gas at 25 cents a thousand!

The possibility of such a thing is one that few citizens of Chicago would entertain for a moment. While the Gas Trust lives and coal burns thrive, it is to be regarded as the inevitable fate of suffering mankind to bear upon its shoulders the double burden of these twin "Old Men of the Sea." A champion has arisen, however, in the person of an inventor who claims to be able to dislodge the dual burden, and to supply light and fuel at a price that the present dispensers of these commodities would declare insufficient to pay their cigar bill.

The new invention found ready support among Chicago capitalists when first it was made known, and on the principle of "trying it on a dog," a company was formed for the purpose of testing its practicality at Jackson, Mich.

CLAIMS OF THE NEW PROCESS.

"Water fuel gas" is the name applied to the combustible manufactured by the new process. Without going into a detailed scientific description of how the gas is made a comparison of the results may serve all practical purposes for the present. By the system used by the existing gas companies a ton of soft coal is made to yield about 6,000 feet of gas. The new process, however, produces from one ton of coal 40,000 feet of gas. The highest price for coal slack is not over 75 cents a ton. This reduces the cost of the raw material to about one-sixth, which the extra yield reduces still further to one-fortieth of the cost of the present gas.

With such a statement before it the Chicago company, which has taken up the manufacture of water fuel gas, commenced operations in Jackson in December, 1887. Their works were completed last October, since which time they have been supplying Jackson with gas for fuel and lighting purposes. Prior to the use of the new process slack coal, such as any of the Illinois mines yield, can be used, and instead of 6,000 feet one ton of coal will yield 40,000 feet.

This reduces the cost of the raw material to about one-sixth, which the extra yield reduces still further to one-fortieth of the cost of the present gas. The old company, which formerly exported $2 a thousand from its customers, has now reduced its price to $1 and is not yet gone out of business. The rates charged for Jackson are somewhat higher than would be charged in Chicago, where coal slack, instead of being worth $1.80 a ton, costs only 75 cents.

THE POSSIBILITIES.

The light furnished by the new gas is claimed to be better than the ordinary coal gas. An incandescent gas-burner is used, which furnishes a steady, soft light of remarkable purity.

The greatest disadvantage which the opponents of the new gas claimed was that it emitted no smell, and could therefore escape and fill a room without being detected. To disprove this many experiments were tried by citizens of Jackson, and their verdict is unanimous to the fact that the gas carries with it a distinctively offensive smell, which is as great a safeguard as the odor of coal gas against accident.

Said a gentleman connected with the new company yesterday:

"We could afford to give gasoline to every house, office and factory in Chicago for nothing if they would use fuel gas at forty cents a thousand."

"How much?"

"The amount of gas consumed for lighting purposes is only a retail affair when all is said and done. Recent statistics show that the total consumption of the United States is only 30,000,000 of feet per day. The introduction of natural gas in Pittsburgh the daily consumption for manufacturing purposes has been 300,000,000 of feet. If any company could have the contract for furnishing the 300,000,000 of feet per day, you think it could throw in Pittsburgh's share of the 30,000,000 used for lighting purposes?"

POULTRY NOTES.

Indifference concerning the introduction of fresh and pure blood into the flocks of poultry materializes into indifference. It is better for the health of fowls slightly to underfeed than to overfeed. It is folly to surfeit them, with the idea that a fatty condition of the body is essential to egg production and vigorous offspring.

A poultryman near Minneapolis made 150 hens pay him $3 apiece last year; and he is now selling eggs from several hundred hens for 35 cents a dozen, and the supply is much too small for the demand.

Few people consider that farm yard fowls of all kinds, ducks and geese included, get a great part of their living, and in some parts of the year, Me. of it, from what would otherwise be lost or wasted, and from bugs, insects, snails and worms, which are a positive harm to growing crops.

By far too much corn is used by poultrymen, and not enough of wheat, oats, barley, milo, green and clover. Clover grown for winter use is valuable, owing to the large percentage of albumen it contains. Variety of food is essential to the well-being and productiveness of fowls.

The composition of eggs requires variety of material, and those constituents are found in plain and cheap food of one kind or another.

A Minneapolis poultry commission man says: "I am receiving more poorly dressed poultry this season than ever before. No few should be fed for at least twenty-four hours before killing. After removing the feathers the skin should be over the neck and neatly trimmed. Every bird should be packed uniformly, and all excrescences removed from the feet and legs. Light-colored plump chickens are the most desired, but if not properly dressed and packed will not command the price of the poorer, yellow-skinned ones with which proper care has been taken in killing, dressing, packing and preparing for market."

The Geographical Centre.

Springfield (Mass.) Union.

The geographers are all at sea regarding the geographical centre of the United States. Taking Quebec, Canada, as the most eastern point, Alton, Illinois, as the most western, Point Barrow, Alaska, as the most northern, and Key West, Fla., as the most southern, and forming a parallelogram, it appears that the geographical centre of the country is 270 miles east of San Francisco in the Pacific ocean. Who says we have no rights to protect in the Pacific?

Deafness Can't be Cured.

by local applications, they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
